Hey Brian I wanted to give you a little update, please keep this between you and I. I spoke with our vendor who put the new lines in our kitchen. He asked for feedback and if the kids like everything. I told him that the kids do not like the new plastic containers and mentioned what has been going on with the environmental side of it as well. He said that as much as he would like to hear that the kids like it, it is about the kids. He is going to talk to my boss Bob about switching out the new hot box and bringing back a tray line. Fingers crossed, but with a little luck we may be able to get the tray line back which would then bring back the trays needed for your program. A win-win all around.
